

13th ICBEN Congress on Noise as a Public Health Problem Stockholm, Sweden, June 15-18 2020

Dear colleagues

On behalf of the International Commission on Biological Effects of Noise (ICBEN), we would like to announce that the 13th ICBEN congress on Noise as a Public Health Problem will be held June 15-18 2020 in the midst of the Nordic summer in Stockholm, Sweden! Please save the date for this event! The congress will take place on the Solna campus of the Karolinska Institute and is open to all interested scientists, researchers, and policy makers alike.

ICBEN 2020 welcomes contributions from the following fields:

- Noise-induced hearing loss
- Noise and communication
- Non-auditory health effects of noise
- Effects of noise on cognition, performance and behaviour
- Effects of noise on sleep
- Community response to noise and noise annoyance
- Noise policy and economics
- Noise exposure assessment in health effect studies
- Special topics related to noise effects
- Low frequency noise and vibration

The congress is hosted under the auspices of ICBEN, by the Institute of Environmental Medicine, Karolinska Institutet.

For further information and important dates please visit www.icben2020.se

This is the first announcement. A second announcement and call for papers will follow later this year. Please accept our apologies for any cross-mailings. Drop us a line if you wish to be removed from the mailing list.

Best regards,

Maria Albin & Jenny Selander, Karolinska Institutet
Congress Chairwomen

Mathias Basner, Mark Brink & Sabine Janssen
ICBEN Executive Committee

Organized by

The conference is hosted by ICBEN <http://www.icben.org/> Institute of Environmental Medicine, Karolinska Institutet <https://ki.se/en/imm/startpage>